MISSING ROSENBAUM GIRL FOUND DEAD NEAR SALEM; SUSPECT HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER DENIES CHARGE

FROZEN NORTH HOLDS FATE OF ITALIA TODAY

Tracing Mysterious Radio Calls Which May Give Clue to Whereabouts of Missing Balloon of Nobile and His Crew

The fate of the missing polar exploration balloon Italia remained a mystery today.

Somewhere in the frozen north the balloon has either landed or is drifting through the air.

Hope for the safety of Gen. Umberto Nobile, leader of the expedition and his companions, was based chiefly upon a radiogram which was picked up by San Francisco wireless stations saying that the Italia had met with disaster. This message was believed to have been relayed by a Russian wireless station on the Siberian coast. It did not give the position of the balloon.

Norway is sending a fleet of ships to comb the Arctic sea.

Heavy winds were reported off the northern coast of Spitzbergen by the steamship Citta di Milano the mobile base of the Italian expedition. It reported that the wind was piling up huge masses of ice.

Persons familiar with the Arctic held out hope that the Italia had been able to land and that an impoverished wireless outfit might be rigged up to give its position to searchers.

Resources Are Many

London, May 28.—The frozen Arctic today held the secret of the disappearance of the dirigible Italia.

The fate of General Umberto Nobile, famous commander of the giant airship, and his intrepid crew may never be known. Theories regarding the ship's sudden silence are many but facts upon which to base them are absent.

Willing resources are many but they are at a loss as to how to proceed to the aid of the lost airship. With not a single definite clue, the hardy northerners who are planning the rescue expeditions find themselves faced by thousands of miles of trackless wastes which must be scoured in the fastest possible time.

Keeping Radio Vigil
San Francisco, May 28.—Three expert operators of the Radio Corporation of America, as well as several amateur operators, were keeping a constant vigil here today on short wave lengths, ranging from 30 to 40 meters, in the hope that additional signals may be intercepted that will afford some clue to the location of General Umberto Nobile's missing dirigible Italia.

The trio of experienced radio men were assigned to the task of concentrating on the 30 to 40 meter range as the result of a distress call, picked up early yesterday by Radio Corporation and amateur operators here.

Repeated over a period of some two hours, the message, in substance, read:

"Dirigible Italia of General Nobile."

15 Incoming Liners
Fogbound In Harbor

New York, May 28.—More than 2,500 passengers on 15 incoming liners today were within figurative hailing distance of their destinations, but the ships were fogbound in the lower bay.

The President Garfield of the Dollar line, was returning with tourists from France. Two Cunarders, the Carinthia and the Lancastria from English ports. Lay at rest near the Garfield.

Other trans-Atlantic ships that swung in idleness were the Frederick VIII, from Copenhagen; the New York of the Hamburg American line; the Red Star liner Arabic; the California of the Anchor line; the Atlantic transport Minnetonka and the Furness-Bermuda boat, Port Victoria.

Parade Opens Saxons' Convention; Four Are To Speak Tonight

REV. B. E. RUTZKY

A parade at noon today opened the national convention of North American Transylvania Saxons, which will be held in Salem today and tomorrow.

Delegates and visitors from the 45 national societies began arriving this morning, and large crowds are already in attendance for tonight's program.

Hundreds of autos filled with visitors are expected this afternoon, fulfilling the pre-convention prediction that 2,500 persons would be in Salem during the convention.

Get-acquainted gatherings were held at the German Hall on Railroad st. this afternoon, following the luncheon at the auxiliary tent, erected especially to take care of the large crowds expected. Dinner will be served from 6 to 8 p. m. when the evening's program will start.

Mayor Phil G. Hiddleston will officially welcome the convention officers and delegates with an address, "Welcome Greetings."

The program will be opened with a march played by Finley's Melody band, a greeting song sung in German by the Salem Männerchor, and a short address of greetings by Mrs. Anna Schuster, chairman of the Salem committee and president of the local society.

Rev. George Schuster, Columbus pastor, will address the assembly in German, following which Rev. B.

Farmer Boys Will Receive Reward For Finding Girl's Body

Two bright-eyed boys, who do their chores on the farm with enjoyment, today stand a chance of obtaining more than $1,000 in rewards which had been offered for the discovery of the body of the Rosenbaum girl, or traces of her whereabouts, if alive.

They are Melvin and Robert Lippitt, 13 and 15 years of age, respectively, who came upon the body of the dead girl Sunday afternoon.

All credit for the find goes to them, and many of the authorities who worked on the case here Sunday declared they unquestionably deserve the entire reward.

Improvements
AT PARK SOUGHT

Need more Ball Diamonds,
Commissioners say; Aid
May Be Obtained

Plans for the improvement of the Centennial park recreation and sports grounds are being made by the park commission.

The commissioners hope to find groups which use the ball diamonds sufficiently interested to aid in a project for the rebuilding of the grounds.

It is the hope of the commissioners that several soft ball diamonds will be laid out, probably three in number, so that several games can be in progress at the same time.

Considerable work would be necessary, and some money would be needed. Groups may arrange with President F. L. Rollins of the commission for such improvements.

Much interest already is being shown in the park's facilities for recreation this year. The rebuilt tennis courts find favor with many and are used day and evening.

Players are requested to observe the rule which forbids use of regular shoes on the courts. Only tennis shoes are permitted.

CHURCHILL IS GRILLED IN JAIL BY AUTHORITIES

Salem Man Claims That He Is Innocent of Any Part In Death

INSISTS HE WAS
IN CITY MAY 14

Police File Charge After Auto Trips to Youngstown Are Known

Harry Churchill, formerly of Detroit, who has been working in Salem several weeks, today denied, after several hours' grilling in the county jail at Lisbon, that he was out of the city on May 14, the day the Rosenbaum girl disappeared.

Churchill is charged with manslaughter in connection with the case, the charge being filed last night but withheld until today. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kinsvatter was informed of the charge last night.

The man was taken to Lisbon Saturday after he pleaded guilty in Mayor Phil Hiddleston's court to a charge of sodomy. He was placed on $2,500 bond, which he could not furnish.

It was because police feared he might raise the bond and disappear that they placed the manslaughter charge to be certain he will be held until the case is solved.

Made Trips To Youngstown
Churchill denied all charges, and said he is not implicated in the case. He stuck to his story throughout the grilling. Chief of Police T. W. Thompson, Kinsvatter, Prosecutor R. M. Brooks and Assistant Prosecutor John Baucknecht questioned the man.

Chief of Police Thompson signed the affidavit upon which the manslaughter charge is based. The charge was made only after careful consultation regarding the state laws. The charge is sufficient to hold the man, and if necessary, can be changed to a more serious charge.

It was found, before the affidavit was signed, that Churchill had been making mysterious auto trips to Youngstown almost daily for several weeks. He ostensibly went to play golf, and carried half a dozen golf clubs with him. Mayor Hiddleston does not believe golf was his sole object in the trips. Churchill worked at night at a local plant.

Auto Held By Police
Mayor Hiddleston said that the charge was placed against Churchill last night after a raid on his room at his rooming house on East Seventh st., disclosed lurid and depraved literature.

His effects were carefully examined, and the mayor said he is confident Churchill may know something about the Rosenbaum case. The auto which police have kept at City Hall since Saturday morning also tallies in many ways with the roadster sought in connection with the case.

Police are trying to determine if the general fight on East High st. last Friday night had any connection with the case. It is not believed that it has. Mayor Hiddleston stated he does not believe it is linked in the case at all, though he gave it some study.

This fight was within two miles of the place where the body was found, leading some to believe it was connected with the case.

A Ford roadster. That is practically certain to be linked in the case, Deputy Sheriff Kinsvatter believes.

After Kinsvatter had discovered the girl's coat, he was informed that the Lippitt family had seen a Ford roadster parked on the Painter rd. last Friday night.

Lippitt said that as the family machine drew near to the parked roadster, which was in darkness, the driver switched on the lights so that the occupants would not be seen.

After the Lippitt machine passed, the lights of the roadster were again switched off. Lippitt put it down as a "spongers" car and thought nothing more about it.

Kinsvatter decided to drive around onto the Painter rd. and he stopped at the place where the roadster had been seen parked. Here he discovered the tracks of the machine. He got out of the car, and went over to the bank which separates the road from the ravine.

Here he made the discovery of a heel mark. It was a deep cut in the earth, as though the person who made it might have been carrying something heavy. He scrambled up the bank and into the brush at the top of the ravine. Looking across

BOYS DISCOVER CHILD'S BODY; CASE MYSTERY

Quest For Missing Youngstown Girl Ends In Death Sunday Afternoon In Ravine Between Painter and Egypt Roads

CLAIM DEATH DUE TO EXPOSURE

Authorities Unable To Determine How She Got To Place Where Body Was Found; She May Have Wandered There

BULLETIN

Police believe that another clue was uncovered today through the finding of the pair of stockings said to have been worn by the girl at the time of her disappearance from home.

The stockings were found by Patrolman William Reardon of the Salem police force at 10:30 a. m., today while Reardon and Patrolman Ralph Stoffer were searching the woods for clues. They were found on the Egypt rd., 500 feet from the ravine where the body was found.

The quest for Beatrice Lillian Rosenbaum, 10-year-old Youngstown girl, believed kidnapped two weeks ago today, ended near Salem Sunday afternoon—but in death.

Nearly hidden by the brush and trees of a ravine northeast of the city, the body of the girl was discovered by two farmer boys.

Mystery today surrounds her death. Authorities working on the case, and representing Salem, Columbiana county, Mahoning county and Youngstown, have not been able to determine how the girl got to the place where the body was found.

She died from exposure and starvation, according to three examining physicians, including Coroner M. E. Hayes, of Youngstown, but how she got to the wooded ravine is the mystery. She had been dead about 48 hours.

Did she walk from Youngstown, hiding by day and traveling at night, picking up scraps to eat until she could find no more food, and then collapsed?

Was she actually kidnapped, as has been maintained, and did her abductor hold her captive for a time, finally carrying her, dead or alive or leading her, still alive, to the sparsely populated territory where her body was found?

Missing Since May 14

These two main questions today found no definite answer. Theories abound, but actual evidence has not been uncovered.

The body of the missing child was found at 3:30 p. m., Sunday by two boys, Melvin Lippitt, 13, and Robert Lippitt, 15, brothers, in a ravine on the Shilling farm on the Painter rd., adjacent to the farm of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lippitt, R. D. 4, Egypt rd., in Columbiana county about two and one-half miles northeast of the city.

She had been missing since May 14, and Youngstown officials, especially Chief of Police J. J. McNicholas, believed that she would be found alive.

On that day she disappeared in the morning, and never was seen alive again. The quest for her ended in deeper tragedy than that surrounding the frenzied hunt staged in Youngstown and other Ohio cities for 12 days. Lakes were drained, thickets were searched, all leads were run to the ground. Six suspects were sought.

How she got to where the body was found—whether she was carried, still alive; dragged, alive or dead; or whether she had walked into the ravine—has not been determined.

Clothes Are Found

More than half of the girl's clothes were scattered near the body when it was found. They were not torn. Neither did her shoes, without laces and lying a considerable distance from the body, indicate that they had been used for walking over rough and stony ground. Coroner M. E. Hayes of Mahoning county, at 1:30 a. m. Monday, following an autopsy of several hours at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Youngstown, gave a verdict of death from starvation and exposure. He said that they had been used for walking

WELCOME SAXONS

Today Salem is welcoming a large gathering of Transylvania Saxons of the United States, here to attend a national convention which will continue throughout Tuesday. Within the two days some 2,500 visitors are expected in the city. It is a large number for a city of 12,000 population to entertain and Salem appreciates the recognition thus accorded it.

Merchants especially are showing their appreciation by extending a greeting to the Saxons by means of large window cards and by decorating the business district in honor of the visitors; the mayor has issued a proclamation of welcome in which he urged all citizens to aid in making the delegates' stay in the city pleasant and memorable; and to these greetings The News is pleased to add its word of welcome with the hope that all who attend sessions of the convention will take home with them a most favorable impression of our little city.

This association of Transylvania Saxons which is opening its national convention here today represents some of the best stock in our American citizenship. In this, their land of adoption, these Saxons have settled down to a quiet, peaceful life. There are sturdy and progressive and quick to accept American ways of living. A great majority of them are home owners, imbued with the desire to contribute to the upbuilding of their community in brief, they are representative American citizens, and proud of their adopted country.

To such a people this city is proud to pay homage today and tomorrow. May their visit be pleasant and profitable.

STREET NAMES

City council has shown a willingness to carry out the suggestion that the names of certain streets in Salem be changed to eliminate confusion. A special committee of that body has made a partial report and now is conferring with civic leaders preparatory to making a complete report at the meeting of council Tuesday, June 5. No serious objection has been raised to this procedure and none is anticipated, so that council should be ready to pass the necessary legislation immediately upon the committee's report. If this is done next Tuesday night, the changes can be put into effect in time for inclusion in the new telephone directories, which are used to a large extent as city directories.

Perhaps some suggestions will be made to council to guide it in adopting new names for through streets which now bear two or more names. Already State street has been suggested for Main-McKinley-Roosevelt, because Main street is a part of what was originally known as the state road, extending east and west. Consideration also is likely to be given the suggestion that Green and High streets become Second and Third streets, to conform to the general plan of street names north of Main street. There is a proposal to term north and south and east and west alleys courts and places. That may not be so important as the other suggestions, but it should not be necessary for council to delay action on the whole scheme after the committee reports. The city engineer, upon whom will fall the task of preparing for the changes, has expressed his willingness to lend every possible assistance, but he cannot start his work until council authorizes it.

The proposal to change these street names is a progressive one and it is to be hoped that councilmen will speed the work. Renumbering by blocks is an important part of the plan and preparation for this should not be overlooked by the solons.

Al Smith says there is no difference between the people of New York and North Carolina, and now both states are trying to figure whether they got a knock or a boost.—Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch.

What Others Say

MORALITY OF ANIMALS

In setting themselves apart and above the world of dumb brutes, men have sometimes seemed more brutal than the animals they look down on. Superior intelligence may fairly claim, but only too often it has been turned to unworthy purposes. Whether animals are ever able to recognize man's injustice, though there is plenty of evidence of revenge upon a cruel master, Justice is perhaps beyond the capacity of an animal to appreciate completely. But it is almost the only moral feeling omitted by Prof. James H. Leuba in his discussion of morality among the animals in the June Harper's.

Whatever one's definition of morality, a good case is made out for its existence in animals. Darwin found every conceivable emotion, both good and bad, expressed by beasts. Prof. Leuba limits his paper to a consideration of four major aspects of morality as displayed by man and his inferiors. The first of these is the common claim of both to personal property. Birds defend not only their nest but the feeding ground surrounding it. Eagles rule a considerable area from which intruders are excluded. Many apes have playthings which they will permit their fellows to handle, but which must be returned. Often a monkey will take a favorite toy to bed with him every night. In defending their property, whether home, mate, food or toys, animals "do not cautiously measure the strength of their antagonists before giving battle." They rush in like a man who knows he has the right on his side. "Righteous indignation" is not a bad term to describe their attitude.

It is harder to find a concise expression for the behavior of a domestic animal when scolded by his master. If a dog has never been struck or punished in any way, he will nevertheless fawn and cower when scolded. He will appear to be ashamed if he is caught in disobedience. He is not so much terrified at the physical pain of punishment as troubled perhaps by conscience! The third trait is helpfulness. Animals are devoted to each other in making their homes, feeding the young and caring for an injured mate or relative. Monkeys, especially the females, will give their own food to others that are ill or hurt, even if they are not related. They also show great sympathy and affection, stroking and petting each other. When a critic suggested that such demonstrations were nothing more than blind parental love, the professor reminded him that the human mother's desire to care for her child is the same instinct. She preserves a baby shoe, while the monkey as tenderly guards her infant, even refusing to give up its body if it dies.

Gratitude in animals is often seen. Two monkeys had accidentally been shut out of doors during a cold rain. Prof. Kohler, passing them, instead opened the door for them. Instead of scampering inside at once, "as many a child would have done," they remained long enough to embrace and thank their friend as well as they could.—New York Times.

DON'T USE STOMACH LIKE A CARPET BAG

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Not long ago the Librarian of Congress invited me to a luncheon. He had an interesting group about the table. Among the guests was Prof. W. E. Boothill, professor of Chinese at Oxford University, England.

Prof. Boothill set us all laughing by reciting a little poem. It was a recital intended to warn Dr. Putnam's guests against over indulgence.

Here are the words:
Eat slowly; only men in rags,
Or gluttons deep in sin,
Mistake themselves for carpet bags,
And tumble victims in.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND
Elizabeth's time. It is Sir Walter

Funny, isn't it? It gave us a good laugh and in all probability increased our appetites in consequence.

The poem was written by Sir Walter Raleigh. Of course this is not the Sir Walter Raleigh, explorer, statesman, historian, and poet, of Elizabeth's time. It is Sir Walter Raleigh, now professor of English at Oxford.

I trust you are not one of those who "mistake themselves for carpet bags and tumble victims in." But if you are not, you are a rare person.

I truly believe the average individual eats too much. Many times I have said that you live on one-third of what you eat and the doctors live on the other two-thirds.

This statement is almost if not quite true, because most of us overeat and habitually overeat. I have no patience with folks who starve themselves for the sake of being slender. That is an evil worse if anything than sinful overeating. But everybody should be sensibly temperate in habits of eating.

It is surprising how much the intake of food can be reduced without the slightest decline in weight. This shows that the body does not use, but must get rid of much of the material taken into the stomach. Useless and perhaps harmful demands are made on the digestive and eliminative organs by everyday excesses.

In addition, as Sir Walter suggests, to eat slowly is of great importance to health. Only tramps or gluttons deep in sin should gulp their food and treat the stomach as if it were a dump heap or a place to "tumble victims in."

Much of the food we eat consists largely of starch. This must be converted into sugar before it can be utilized by the body. The first step in this conversion is the mixture with the starch of large quantities of saliva. This cannot be accomplished unless you eat slowly, thoroughly pulverizing the food.

I hope you will memorize this little poem. It should be recited at every meal.

Points For The Big Olympic Test

When it comes to swimmers California is one of the states which must be considered. When Californians mention swimmers, they always include Georgia Coleman, Los Angeles club star. Miss Coleman holds the junior national title on the ten-foot spring board and is considered a sure bet for the U. S. Olympic team. Well, if Georgia can swim as well as she looks there isn't any question of her ability in the water.

1,000 FROM OHIO TO ATTEND MEET

Make Arrangements For a Large Legion Delegation to San Antonio

San Antonio, Tex., May 28—Arrangements have been completed here for entertaining more than 1,000 Ohio members of the American Legion and its auxiliary at their national convention here October 8 to 12 by Department Adjutant J. J. Saslavsky, of Columbus.

Mr. Saslavsky made a special trip to arrange for hotels and work out other plans for his delegation. This is the first time in the history of the Ohio Department. It is understood that a special representative has been sent to the Legion national convention city to make arrangements in advance of the gathering. Mr. Saslavsky spent three days here.

The official delegation will be housed in the Menger hotel, famous for the fact that here Roosevelt stayed when he was organizing his Rough Riders. Officials of the department will be housed, Mr. Saslavsky stated, at the Lanier hotel, within a five minute walk of the municipal auditorium, where the convention sessions will be held. This auditorium, built at a cost of more than $2,000,000, was erected as a memorial to those who served in the World War.

The delegation of more than 1,000 will remain on their Pullman Pullman parks, according to Mr. Saslavsky.

Bands and drum corps which accompany the delegation will be quartered in one of the high schools. Here they will have individual sanitary cots, mattresses, sheets, pillows, and pillow cases, Mr. Saslavsky said.

Guests of the delegation will be housed in private homes at prices that will appeal to Legionnaires and their families.

After going over the entertainment program for the convention, Mr. Saslavsky, who has attended every national convention of the Legion since the St. Louis caucus in 1919, stated that the entertainment here will far surpass anything ever planned for a Legion convention.

The Ohio delegation, Mr. Saslavsky stated, will make the trip in special trains over the Big Four and the Missouri Pacific.

Flambeau Parade Revived For Night Before Convention

Kansas City, Mo., May 28—Revival of the famous "Flambeau Parade," which is being planned for June 11, the night preceding the opening of the Republican National convention here, promises to be one of the most elaborate and novel affairs ever attempted at a political convention. Many modern contrivances will augment the old celebrations.

A squadron of airplanes, illuminated with phosphorus, will hover over the heads of the thousands of marchers, according to present plans. Gorgeous floats, brilliantly lighted, scores of bands and many columns of men bearing torches will depict the history of Republicanism through the presidential periods since its inception.

Combined with features reminiscent of the old fashioned processions will be novelties which could not have been provided in the days when science was less advanced.

The first section of the parade will be devoted to Kansas City. The second section, however, will be composed of out-of-town political organizations to boost their favorite candidate.

Wealth No Reason To Shirk Duty As Citizen

Financier Sworn In Likes Grand Jury Attendance

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

ONE of this country's great financiers does not hold himself any better than the ordinary citizen.

Out in Mineola, Long Island, there are only 600 names on the grand jury panel, which means that each talesman must be called often, and J. P. Morgan, whose time is worth more per minute than the average man makes a week, was ready to do his share.

He devoted several thousand dollars' worth of time and he gave his time cheerfully, because, as he explained recently, he considers jury service the duty of every citizen.

Morgan was called last February along with various tradesmen, salesmen and merchants. Because he had planned a tour of the Mediterranean in his yacht Corsair, he asked to be excused, promising to serve during the May term. He returned to New York May 5, but was unable on account of pressure of business to be sworn with other talesmen May 7, but he appeared at the court house recently and was sworn in by Supreme Court Clerk Daniel Sealey.

The Grand Jury listened to twelve minor cases, including charges of

MAKE PROGRESS ON INTERCOUNTY CONCRETE ROAD

Between 625 and 725 feet of concrete is being poured daily on the section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown intercounty highway between Williamsport and Rogers by the Mellert-Weidner company of Medina.

The section to be surfaced is a stretch of 6.9 miles and Monday morning 1.6 miles had been finished with 5.3 miles or 27,884 feet remaining to be surfaced.

At the rate of pouring on an average of 650 feet per day, this section should be completed within 40 to 50 days, weather permitting and sufficient material constantly available.

This same contracting interest is constructing a pipe line on the Salineville-Lisbon road preparatory to pouring concrete, which is expected to begin June 3.

The Fleming - Morgan company have completed pouring the superstructure of a new bridge at Rogers on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road, and within a few days the company will remove its equipment to Clermont county where it has a contract for two bridges.

Charles S. Biery of Alliance has moved a shovel on the Moultrie-Stark county line road in West Township, and excavating is now under way. This same contracting interest has also started the construction of drainage structures on the North Georgetown-Homeworth road.

All drainage structures on the Rogers-Negley road, being built under the supervision of H. C. Armstrong of Lisbon have been completed except two. Most of the superstructure of these was poured Monday.

operating a disorderly house, an auto theft and abandonment.

Morgan would not discuss his experience as he hurried to his automobile.

"Mr. Morgan made a very good juror," said the assistant district attorney. "He was interested in all the cases and listened very carefully."

The Grand Jury adjourned until Friday, when it will convene with Morgan again in his place.

Although Nassau County embraces the homes of many millionaires, Morgan is one of the few who have qualified.

THRONGS OF CURIOUS VISIT EGYPT RAVINE

All Salem was astir at the news of the finding of the body of Beatrice Rosenbaum, 10-year-old Youngstown girl missing from her home at 53 West Marion st. since 9:45 a. m. May 14.

Within ten minutes after the news was learned in this city and vicinity of the finding of the body, Painter and Egypt rds, usually destitute of automobiles, became the center of a caravan of curious throngs, eager for a glimpse of the girl and the ravine where she was found by the two young Lippiatt boys.

A steady stream of autos almost made the roads leading to the spot impassable.

Young girls, boys, young men, women all were attracted to the scene. Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter and Patrolmen Stoffer and Reardon kept the crowds back for several hours, but they soon edged directly to the spot where the corpse was found.

For hours following the body's removal to the Stark funeral home throngs continued to pack the roads leading to the scene, eager for a glimpse of the girl.

The two Lippiatt boys, young farmer lads wearing the proverbial farm apparel of overalls and blue workshirts, Robert, 15, and Melvin, 13, upon the crowd's learning that they were the first on the scene, the actual discoverers of the body became heroes overnight, were questioned by hundreds, and were kept busy answering all sorts of questions of the inquisitive.

After the body was removed to Stark's the crowd concentrated itself on McKinley ave and the rear of the mortuary, eagerly awaiting the decision of Coroner Van Fossan as to the cause of the death.

Excitement of the crowd was at a high pitch when the rumor began circling that a definite decision was rendered as to the cause of the girl's death.

The ravine where she was found once more became the mecca of the crowds.

McKinley ave, and Hawley ave, near the funeral home became crowded with autos forcing Salem police to patrol the streets to keep traffic moving.

Interest was high through Sunday night and Monday morning the throngs continued out Painter and Egypt rds to the woods.

FROZEN NORTH

bible in distress. Supplied with short wave length 30.33 radio. (Signed) Dirigible Italia. General Umberto Nobis.

Location Not Ascertained

The location of the approximate point where the call originated or was relayed, had not been ascertained early today and all efforts to communicate with the sender proved futile. This, coupled with the fact that the call was received in somewhat garbled form with several words misspelled, led experts of the Radio Corporation to discard the earlier theory that it might have been broadcast by an amateur station in northern Siberia and to express the opinion that the message was transmitted directly from the lost dirigible.

On the other hand, Charles E. Balack, an amateur operator who intercepted the call, declares that, in his opinion, the signals were broadcast by an amateur in Siberia in the vicinity of Vladivostok.

Operators at the naval radio station here, though failing to intercept any signals from the polar regions, nevertheless maintained an alert lookout on the short wave length range.

The search of the ether waves for trace of the Italia was without result. As the day advanced possibility of distance reception faded.

The Alaska Packers Association in direct touch with its far flung stations within the Arctic circle had nothing to report.

ROADSTER

A Ford roadster played an important part in the early part of the Rosenbaum case. Two women are alleged to have seen the girl drive away with a man who had a roadster. One woman even described the car. The man, she said, appeared to be about five feet, six inches tall and was between 40 and 50 years of age.

Because of the fact that the roadster angle appeared so strongly, Kindsvatter believes the roadster seen last Friday night is a possible link in the solution of the mystery.

A stir was created at the Rosenbaum home in Youngstown late Sunday when David Thomas, former detective, declared that Beatrice's slayer drove past the home.

The slain girl's father, attracted by a Ford roadster with side curtains attached driving slowly in front of the home, ran into the street and attempted to follow the car. The driver put on speed, very nearly upsetting his car at Marion and Market streets there. Neighbors joined the chase, but none succeeded in getting the car's license number.

Thomas believes that the car contained the slayer and that he was prompted by a criminal's curiosity to revisit the scene of the kidnapping.

Boys Discover

that nothing was found in the stomach, and that there was no water in the intestines. The girl had not been attacked, and no bones were found broken, he added.

The verdict was made after the body had been taken to Youngstown where Coroner J. M. VanFossan and Dr. Stanton Heck of Salem, failed to agree on a cause of death. The coroner thought she might have been attacked. Dr. Heck said that cold and exposure probably caused death, after he found no bones broken and had declared the girl had not been attacked.

Body Found By Chance
The Lippitt boys found the body by chance in mid-afternoon. They had been sent out by their father to hunt some cows which had wandered a distance away. The boys had their ponies and as they rode into the ravine they noticed a pair of black bloomers on the little knoll which was free from underbrush.

Leaving their ponies for a moment the boys went over to examine the piece of clothing. As they drew near they noticed the body of the girl, lying on its side, in a protected spot under some low trees, 20 feet from the clothing.

Going nearer the boys discovered she was dead, and they decided to run home and tell their father. They dashed, excitedly, into the house and Mr. Lippitt inquired if they had found the cows.

"No," answered Robert, "but we found something else."
Mr. Lippitt saw that they were excited, and he further inquired what it was they had seen.

"Why, a dead baby," answered Robert.
Mr. Lippitt then went with the boys to the scene, and seeing that it was true that a dead girl was lying in the ravine, he hurried back to the farmhouse and called City Hall.

Patrolmen Ralph Steffer and William Reardon were informed of the find, and using the police motorcycle, the officers hurried out to the scene.

Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter was in Salem making arrangements for county co-operation in the handling of the large amount of traffic expected during the national Saxon convention today and Tuesday, so when he learned that a body had been found, he drove to the scene, accompanied by George Gilson and two newspaper men.

When the officers arrived they ordered all persons from the immediate premises, and began their investigation. Near the bloomers they found a red and gray togue, a red sweater, a man's handkerchief, and a pair of shoes. The shoes were high top ones, with no laces, and were somewhat shiny.

The body was about 20 feet away. The girl had on her bluish-green dress with black stripes and some underwear.

Brown Coat Is Found
O. G. Stark, undertaker and Coroner VanFossan, were notified by phone and while they were on their way to the scene the policemen and Kindsvatter joined to make a thorough search of the immediate neighborhood for further trace of clothing and other evidence.

Reardon stayed to guard the body while Steffer, Kindsvatter and Gilson began the hunt. They made a complete tour of the woods, ravines and fields nearby, going south and west to the Painter rd. As they started back, Kindsvatter spied a brown coat with a fur collar, lying about 50 feet from the body.

This turned out to be a very important bit of evidence, as it was later determined by Kindsvatter that the girl was dragged or carried, or may have walked, in from the Painter rd side instead of the Egypt rd, from which, access to the scene was made by the investigators and the curious persons who followed the officers to the scene.

Steffor and Kindsvatter came upon evidence where two persons may have been sitting, the grass and brush giving trace of this. The two officers could not find the stockings or the shoe laces.

Stark placed the body in the undertaker's basket, and Kindsvatter gathered up the clothes, after it was determined not to wait for Dr. VanFossan there, but to proceed to the Stark funeral home on McKinley ave. This was just before 5:30 p. m.

After the return to Salem, Youngstown officials and the Rosenbaum family were notified.
Dr. VanFossan had arrived just before the hearse left the scene and came on in to Salem to make his examination of the body. He decided to perform an autopsy, following a preliminary examination, and Dr. Stanton Heck was called in.

While the autopsy was in progress, Chief of Police McNicholas and Capt. Englehart of the Youngstown police department arrived. McNicholas went into the room where the body was, and identified it as the Rosenbaum girl.
A short time later Mrs. Amelia Goldstein, of Chicago, sister of the dead girl, and David Rosenbaum, her brother, arrived from Youngstown. They went in and made positive identification.
Mother Breaks Down
The sister and brother were nearly overcome with the shock, and as Mrs. Goldstein was being led to the Stark office and warehouse building, she nearly collapsed. Persons caught her before she fell, and she soon rallied. She then phoned the Rosenbaum home in Youngstown.
Mrs. Rosenbaum and an aunt of the girl arrived shortly before 8:30 p. m. and were admitted to the room, the autopsy having been completed. Mrs. Rosenbaum broke down completely at the sight of her dead daughter, screaming, crying and shrieking. It was with difficulty that both the mother and aunt were calmed, and the mother had to be assisted to a machine which conveyed her back to Youngstown.
While officials were awaiting the mother, Prosecuting Atty. R. M. Brooks arrived from East Liverpool. Deputy Kindsvatter, having notified him by phone after he returned from the scene of the crime, Brooks was informed by Coroner VanFossan that he and Dr. Heck had not been able to agree on the cause of the death. It was at first believed that her neck was broken and that she had been criminally assaulted. The physicians could not agree, however, on these angles. Dr. Heck stated that death might have been due to cold and exposure, and he did not find evidence of an actual assault. Dr. VanFossan leaned to the belief she had been assaulted.

After Brooks heard VanFossan's outline of the case it was decided to hold a conference. In this conference Dr. VanFossan Dr. Heck Chief McNicholas and Kindsvatter participated. Brooks later went to the scene to make an examination of the territory.

The officials determined to take the body to St. Elizabeth's hospital Youngstown for examination by physicians there. Pending the second examination, Dr. VanFossan withheld his verdict. The Youngstown angle of the case was then turned over to Chief McNicholas. Stark and his assistants took the body to Youngstown after it was made ready.

Among those who are giving assistance to authorities in the investigation of the case is Sam Levenson, Salem furniture store manager.

WATCHES OVER U. S. INTERESTS IN CHINA

A ring of bayonets, backed by a concentration of American warships—these will protect the lives and property of United States citizens in event either Northern or Southern Chinese armies commit untoward acts. Such was the

REPRESENTATIVE AMERICAN GIRL

This study of Claire de Lorez now hangs in the Analthea Arts Works of Switzerland as symbolizing the beauty of the American girl. The painting was done by Ernest Linnebank, one of the world's best known artists, in conjunction with 14 other types of America's prettiest women.

3 Indians Complete Four-Year Bicycling Trip Around World

Bombay, May 28.—After four years of adventure, three Indians have completed a remarkable trip around the world on bicycles.

It was begun on October 15, 1923. The party originally numbered six, but three fell out by the way.

From India the riders went through Baluchistan, where they were fired on by suspicious tribesmen. Then they traversed Persia, Iraq, Palestine, across the Sinai desert to Egypt.

From Egypt they crossed to Italy, where they were arrested as spies. They were afterward released and crossed the Alps in the depth of winter. The European portion of the riders' journey was comparative child's play.

They crossed America, went across to Japan, and then travelled Manchuria, where the wintery conditions tried them severely.

In China they grew beards in order to pass as policemen, but they were often mistaken for Bolsheviks, and had a rough time.

They reached Rangoon, in Burma, and then traversed jungle country to Calcutta, being the first to do the journey on bicycles.

COMPLETE WORK ON DICTIONARY AFTER 70 YEARS

Herbert Coleridge First Editor of Oxford's Mammoth Work

London, May 28.—With the publication here of the last section of the monumental Oxford English dictionary, there has come to fruition the toil of seventy years.

The first section of the dictionary appeared forty years ago, but long before then some of the most learned men of the day were busy on the stupendous task of building up what was to be the greatest dictionary in the world.

The idea of the dictionary was first given definite form at a meeting of the Philological Society on January 7, 1838.

Begun by Coleridge
The following year work was begun by the first editor, Herbert Coleridge, but it was not until 1879, when F. J. Murray took over the editorship, that it was realized how immense was the undertaking.

Sir James was born a poor boy. He went to a London bank, and from there to a small public school, and it was his articles issued from there that made his name and drew attention of the dictionary owner's to him.

When Sir James died in 1915 half the work had been completed. Dr. Henry Bradley, who died in 1923, was the next editor, and the work has since been carried on by Dr. William A. Craigie, who joined the

Boasts Two Winners

DEAN LUCAS PAULINE GRAY

The little town of Congress, Ohio, is justly proud of its two young citizens. Miss Pauline Gray is back from Washington with the second prize in the national spelling bee, and the same school sent Dean Lucas to Washington last year to win the first prize. This is a unique record for any town to hold.

staff in 1897, and Charles T. Onions, who joined two years earlier.

Lady Murray survives to see the end of the magnificent work in which she gave tremendous help to her husband. All her eleven children have at some time or other worked on the dictionary.

5,000,000 References
Sir James Murray collected 5,000,000 references before he began work in earnest. The dictionary contains a record of 414,825 words, 500,000 definitions and 1,827,396 illustrative quotations. The letter S covers the greatest number of words. Already a supplement is being prepared, for since the publication of the first part in 1884 new words have been added to the English language. Such a word as airplane, common today, was unknown 44 years ago, for instance.

'See Ohio First' Campaign Extended to all Schools

Newspapers, Radio and Movies Also Carry
Message to Ohio

Columbus, (Special). — "Know Ohio Week," which began Monday by proclamation of Governor Doney, will be celebrated in every school in the state, under plans completed here by J. L. Clifton, state director of education.

Director Clifton this week urgently requested 12,500 school superintendents of the state to conduct special "See Ohio First" programs in all the schools. The message in turn will be carried to the 42,000 teachers and 1,550,000 students in the state.

In addition, the campaign to sell Ohio to Ohioans as the best state in the union is being carried by the Know Ohio League this week to every citizen through newspapers, by special radio programs at 15 Ohio stations and through 700 movie houses with slides and films.

Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University, is president of the league, and William M. James, Columbus, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Ohio, is secretary.

Gather Photographs
For months, the state educational department has been busy gathering photographs and getting ready to publish a notable volume, "Beautiful Ohio" which will contain 96 pages and 400 photos of Ohio points of interest. This book will shortly come from the press and will fit into the "See Ohio First" campaign.

"The message of the letter I am sending to all state schools," said Mr. Clifton, "is that we don't know Ohio well enough, and I make an appeal to both school child and teacher to get better acquainted with our native state. Hundreds living close to the Logan Elm never have seen this famous tree. The same is true of Blue Hole, Castalia, Blennerhassett Island and the wonderful Indian mounds near Newark."

Gertrude E. Howard

Formerly identified with the Ohio Bankers Association, who is Assistant Secretary of the Know Ohio League, with headquarters at Columbus.

"We are suggesting that some time during 'Know Ohio Week' every school teacher in the state take up a discussion with his or her pupils the points of interest that are nearest. We have 550 spots of beauty and interest in the state in the form of monuments, historical landmarks, archaeological remains, landscapes of surpassing beauty, natural wonders, industrial developments, and so on. We are hoping that every school child will be started on the road toward knowing his own state better during the first 'Know Ohio Week'."

Stresemann Urged To Change Policies

Berlin, May 28.—A radical change of Germany's policy towards France as a result of Poincare's victory at the recent French elections is predicted by responsible quarters close to Foreign Minister Dr. Gustav Stresemann.

According to these quarters Germany may once for all cease "cooing and wooing to Marianne" with a view to bringing about a better understanding between the two nations, and look around in Europe for some powerful allies, so as to approach France with a better prospect of being heard.

Dr. Fritz Klein, editor-in-chief of the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, one of the few German newspapers which have the foreign minister's ear, summarizes the meaning of the French elections for Germany as follows:

"It should be possible to reach an adjustment with Poincare just as with Briand. But we will never succeed in reaching it, unless we adopted his own methods, and unless we look around for political and economical allies."

London—Detectives estimate that clever perch climbers and other burglars in the larger cities average perhaps $60 to $70 per week. The best paid are the crack burglars who rob homes of the wealthy. Confidence men are next. The poorest money getters are the pickpocket and the motor thief. The ordinary pickpocket, they estimate, makes $20 to $30 a week.

INJURED MAN TO FACE CHARGE OF ASSAULT TO KILL

Two Men Are Bound Over
To Lisbon for Fight
On Friday Night

Jenae Kryk, 63 Perry st., and William Grich, Salem men arrested early Saturday morning in connection with the assault on Fred Canny, Depot st., at the home of Theodore Kisko on East High st. about 9:45 p. m. Friday, pleaded guilty to charges of mayhem and assault with intent to kill respectively, and were bound over to common pleas court by Mayor Phil G. Hiddleson.

Kryk, bound over on the mayhem charge, admitted biting Canny about the face and ears. He was taken to Lisbon after being unable to furnish bond, fixed at $3,000. Grich, who admitted assaulting and beating Canny about the body and head with serious intent, was also unable to furnish bond, placed at $2,000.

Kisko was exonerated from any implication in the affair and was released.

Canny, who has been at the City hospital suffering from the results of the beating received is reported getting along favorably. His arm was broken but he was suffering from no serious injuries.

A charge of assault to kill will be placed against him, police say, as soon as he is discharged from the hospital. Canny is said to have started the fight at the Kisko home, hitting Kryk on the head with a board. Kryk, it is said, then went into the house, made the statement that he would "get Canny," left the house and assaulted and bit him with the help of Grich.

Salem High Places Fifth In State Track Meet At Columbus

ALLEN BREAKS STATE RECORD IN POLE VAULT

Champ Goes 12 Ft. 10 In. But Is Unable To Top 13 Ft.; Roessler Second; Van Campen And Pasco Third In Their Events

Lowell "Little Rib" Allen, national indoor pole vault champion, broke the state pole vault record in the big record-smashing state track and field meet at Columbus Saturday when Salem High placed fifth among a field of entries from 74 Ohio schools.

Allen's new record jump was 12 feet 10 inches, breaking the old record established by himself last year, which stood at 12 feet.

Keith Roessler, Salem High's second great vaulter, tied the record, finishing second.

Salem scored 15 points in the meet through Allen's first and Roessler's second, and two third places. Ted Van Campen placed third in his race of the half mile; Joe Pasco third in the javelin throw.

Columbus Central won the meet and the state championship as depicted, Cleveland Lakewood, finishing second. The points of the meet were:

Point Winners

Columbus Central 54; Cleveland Lakewood 32; Toledo Scott 19; Cleveland East Tech 16; Salem 15; Columbus East 14; Shaker Heights 13; Dayton Roosevelt 11; Toledo Libbey 10; Toledo Waite 9; Canton McKinley 9; Cincinnati Withrow 7; Mansfield 5; Dayton Stivers, Cleveland John Adams, and Lima Central 3; Fremont and Alliance 2; New Philadelphia and St. Clairsville 2; Akron Garfield, Massillon and Sandusky 1; St. Mary's one-half.

Allen failed in his attempt to break the world's scholastic record, missing 13 feet 1 inch three times. He cleared the 12-10 mark easily on his first jump, and all indications were that he was "on" and out to duplicate his last week's feat, when he cleared the 13 feet mark.

His first miss of the day came at 12 feet 6 inches. He made it on his second effort, for an easy new record, and then made the next mark on his first jump.

Roessler too, was going good, clearing each mark at his first jump and tied Allen's old state mark of 12 feet. We missed out on 12 feet 3 inches.

Van Runs Great Race

Van Campen broke the local record in the half mile run, stepping it off in the fast time of 2 minutes 3.9 seconds. The 880 was run in two heats, each heat counting a race and points and trophies awarded to place winners.

Van ran in eighth place most of the race, putting out a spurt that led him past four of the runners ahead of him, and within 1.5 seconds of the winner, Mayer of East Tech whose time was 2 minutes 2.4 seconds. In the race one of the eight leading Van Campen most of the way was McCormack, Canton McKinley, who defeated the Salem runner last week in the district meet. Van passed him easily and showed a lot of power in the finish sprint.

The second heat of the 880 was won by McKinley's star man, Allen Rudy who cracked the record standing since 1923, by running it in 1 minute 59.5 seconds.

Pasco Third In Javelin

Pasco won his third in the javelin by a throw of 145 feet, failing to get out a throw of his usual distance. The winning distance was 155 feet 2 inches, 25 feet short of the record and 13 feet short of marks made by Pasco in practice meets all season.

Ed. Sidingier's failure to compete in this event left Salem a few points as he has just been rounding into form after three weeks of diligent practice, but left the team to play in a dance orchestra.

The entire southern half of the Northeastern district failed to collect points equal to the total made by Columbus Central, faring very poorly in the meet. Salem led this district's performers, with Canton, Alliance, Massillon and Akron Garfield the only other schools of this district among the scoring schools.

Two world's records were broken in the meet, Moxley, Columbus Central's colored flash stepping the 440 yard dash in 48.2 seconds and Bennett, Toledo Libby, racing to the other new national mark in the 220 yard dash in 21.1 seconds. Both lads easily won their events, Moxley beating Wise, Lakewood runner, who was picked to give him a hard chase in it, by 10 yards.

Wagonhauser Is Winner

New state records were made in the shot put, mile run, 120 yard high hurdles, 220 yard low hurdles, in the Class "A" division.

Keller, Columbus East smashed both hurdle marks, finishing yards ahead of the field both times. His high hurdle mark was 15.6 seconds, the low 24.8 seconds.

Wagonhauser, young Leetonia freshman, stepped off a fast mile run to place third in the Class "B" mile run which was won in 4:46.9. The Leetonia lad, making the trip with the Salem squad, the only other Columbiana county athlete in the meet besides the Salem group, ran it in 4 minutes 48 seconds flat.

Class "B" marks were all much lower than the "A" division's, with the exception of the javelin throw, which was low in "A" at 155 feet 2 inches. Lackenau of Napoleon in Class B topped this throw with a heave of 166 feet 3.5 inches.

Cincinnati — Madame Eugenie Sealey recently was presented with the medal of the "Officer d'Academie," by the French consul on behalf of his government in recognition of her work in spreading French culture and education in the United States.

Chicago — A "dog court" has been established, having its inaugural today. In it will be heard those cases having to do with dogs. Chief Justice Olson of the municipal court established the court after a conference with Health Commissioner Kegel. Judge McKinley will preside.

HORNSBY IS NOT SO POPULAR AS BOSTON'S PILOT

Walsh Finds Resentment May Break Out As Soon As Braves Go Bad

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

Boston, Mass., May 28.—Boston's rather emotional populace is preserving an air of strict neutrality towards Rogers Hornsby and his elevation to the management of the Boston Braves, the third major upheaval of his fortunes within a year.

The town in general contents itself with stating that it is not against the young man but, if I am any judge of the statements and counter-statements aired in my presence today, it may be more truthfully said that it is far from for him.

From what I was able to gather, the casting of a guy by the name of Slattery from Boston in favor of a guy by the name of Hornsby from Texas would have enraged the citizens no end and that the very air would be thick red with Irish dominoes, if it wasn't for one restraining factor.

Nobody, they say, cares one way or the other what the Boston Braves do, if anything. There always are a few irreconcilables, of course, and these are muttering very darkly in their mustache cups about the "inside story" of Slattery's summary removal. But innuendos dealing with "inside facts" seem to follow Hornsby's varying fortunes as naturally as the average heel follows a toe and, anyhow, Boston says it isn't interested beyond the fact that it prefers to resent Hornsby rather than like him.

Tough Is Team Losses

The writer, somehow, gained the impression that their smoldering resentment, far from superficial in spite of their expressed lack of interest, will break in a veritable storm upon Hornsby's fighting head if he fails to make the Braves win. Their antagonism, while dormant enough at the moment, seems to be instinctive. I am informed that they hooted Hornsby the very first time he appeared at Braves field in a Boston uniform.

Personally, I think that they might be more justified in showing a need of appreciation for a ball player whose desire to win is exceeded only by his ability to do so under normal conditions.

The demonstration against Hornsby was prompted tacitly, it appears, by the fact that he failed to chase a fly ball hit into short right field, his reigning weakness. The real cause of the outbreak, however, is said to have been deeper than this. Even at that early juncture, they professed to know that Slattery's days were numbered and that Hornsby was to be named as his successor as soon as the management could do so with decency.

Jack Never Had Chance
"Slattery never had a chance," was the almost universal comment in Boston today, even among those who profess only an academic interest in the situation. "They convicted him as a failure on five weeks work. In fact, they convicted him before he started. He was all but booted out several days before the opening but the club thought better of it. And the poor ball team they gave him to start with was made worst by illnesses and the fact that the players knew their boss was to go as soon as possible."

The Jack Slattery under discussion happens to have a very strong personal following in Boston. He is a home town boy and as Irish as an order of potatoes. O'Brien, a combination like that simply can't miss in the land of the sacred cod.

INDIANS BEATEN BY THE BROWNS

Cubs Smack Pirates; Reds Take Cardinals Over; Senators Beat A's

New York, May 29.—The Chicago Cubs can regain first place by beating the League-leading Reds today. The Reds are nobody's set-up, however. They are playing the best ball in the league, having won seven of their last nine starts.

Both of the leaders won yesterday. Carl Mays, Cincinnati's submarine ball expert, whitewashed the Cardinals, 2 to 0. St. Louis dropped back into the second division.

Forty thousand fans saw Sheriff Blake of the Cubs win his fifth straight victory. He held the Pirates to five hits and blanked them 3 to 0. Cliff Heathcote had a perfect day at bat with three hits and drove in two runs.

The Giants jumped to third place by taking two close ones from the Phillies, 5 to 4 and 2 to 1. Ott's single in the eleventh won the opener and Hurst's wild throw in the ninth cost the Phils the nightcap. Denton and Barnes were the winning pitchers.

The Boston Braves won their first game under Hornsby's management, beating Brooklyn 4 to 1. The Braves dropped the second game, 8 to 3. Hendrick and Bisette getting homers.

Outside of the Yankees, Chicago is the only American League outfit that has been playing better than 500 ball. The Sox capped their fourth victory in their last six starts by shading Detroit, 3 to 2, in a duel between Lyons and Vangilder. Lyons yielded only four hits.

The best pitching performance of the day was turned in by Hadley of the Senators, who held the wrecked Athletics to a pair of singles by Biehop and won in a romp, 4 to 1. The Nats hadn't won a game all last week.

The Browns took a 10 to 8 slugfest from Cleveland. The Yankees and the Red Sox did not play.

College Athletics On Big Scale Are Highly Expensive

New Haven, Conn., May 28.—The cost of college athletics on a large scale is indicated by the Yale Athletic association which has reported some of the major items of operating costs here.

Coches take the sum of $200,000 a year in salaries, uniforms, and other equipment for teams comes to $31,000 annually, and Yale's trips to meet other college teams out of-town cost $47,000—including fares and hotel bills, each season. To transport student athletes from the gymnasium or campus to the athletic fields and to the boat houses at Derby and on New Haven harbor takes $28,000 a year.

Yale boasts the finest college athletic plant extant. To maintain that plant takes $85,000 from the association coffers each year. To add to the playing fields the association spent $20,000 for land and another $20,000 to put the land into condition. A new stadium for the baseball field just put into use, cost $210,000 while new stands for the track field cost $3,000.

The athletic association has spent $4,000 this spring to put in additional tennis courts and proposes to spend $15,000 more soon.

Leads Cincy's Dash

Keystone man in the unexpected spurt of the Cincinnati club in the National League race is Hughey Critz, diminutive second baseman, who has been batting like a fiend and seems to be intent on figuring in a new world's record for double plays by the end of the season.

RUDY WILL MEET TRIPPE TUESDAY

Battles In Semi-Final Of Zill's Card At Idora Park

While it is only natural that the main bout between Jack Gross of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mike Conroy of Rochester, N. Y., should create the majority of interest in Promoter Al Zill's inaugural outdoor show at Idora park Tuesday night the preliminary card as arranged is also causing the folks to sit up and take notice.

In the six round semi-final Young Rudy of Pittsburgh, favorite in a stable, will meet Joe Trippie, a Salem man of Conroy.

Trippie is a hard punching, experienced veteran of many a hard fought battle under the glaring calcium, and is every bit as tough, if not tougher than Rudy, and the fun should fly aplenty when these two lads get together.

One of the sixes will feature Billy Wallace of Youngstown and Bobby Belford of Alliance. This fight should be a whiz from an action standpoint, as both of these lads can fight.

George Meenahan, old knock-out George, whose sensational battles in this section a few years ago made him a big local favorite, comes back in one of the four rounds to do battle with Ed Litz, Warren.

Young Guido of Chardon, Pa., will tackle Walter Stewart of Barborton in the opener of four rounds.

She'll Compete

Here is one of the reasons why the International Beauty Pageant at Galveston, Texas, simply must be a success. She is Miss Anne Dubin of Philadelphia, chosen from among hundreds of charming representatives of the Keystone State to be "Miss Pennsylvania" at the Galveston show.

AIR THRILLER

"The Legion of the Condemned" at the Grand is filled with the romance, the daring and the excitement which surrounded those birds of war for whom no mission was considered too dangerous. It is a check full of thrills taken from the cockpit of the airplanes.

Here is a tale of a young American newspaperman who, believing that his sweetheart has passed out of his life forever, plunges into the "Legion of the Condemned," whose personnel consists of men who want more than anything else to die. Each and every one of them have pasts, and, according to their philosophy, their sins may be expiated only through death.

He is torn between two fires, however, when he is confronted with the problem of transporting the girl he loves over the German lines as a spy.

"The Legion of the Condemned" comes from the pen of John Monk Saunders, author of the famous road show "Wings," and was directed by William Wellman, who handled the megaphone on "Wings." The latter was a member of the Lafayette Squadron during the war.

The cast consists of Fay Wray, who leaped to fame through her performance in Paramount's "The Wedding March," after being "discovered" by Eric Von Stroheim, Gary Cooper as the leading man, and Barry Norton, Lane Chandler, Francis McDonald, Vaya George, Freeman Wood, E. H. Calvert and Charlie Bird.

The pilot of the "ships," a great many of whom assisted in the filming of "Wings," include many world famous names in the world of flying. Among them are Captain S. C. Campbell, third ranking British ace, Ted Parsons, of the French, and Lieut. Rudolph Schad, a member of Baron Von Richthofen's flying circus.

The same technical work, which made "Wings" such an outstanding hit, was employed in the making of this newest picture of the air.

"WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS"

"We're All Gamblers" Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture directed by James Cruze, opens at the State tonight. Life's ups and downs in a big city and the thread of a love which weaves it together and makes it worth while are vividly portrayed in this new Meighan offering.

The story is different and gripping. It was originally a stage play "Lucky Sam McCarver" by Sidney Howard, but it has been developed and made stronger for the screen by Hope Loring James Cruze, maker of "The Covered Wagon" and "Old Ironsides" has done a splendid job of direction.

From start to finish come a succession of surprises. A strong comedy vein is furnished by red-headed, freckle-faced Spec O'Donnell while Gunboat Smith deserves full credit for all the laughs he injects. Marietta Milner, leading woman, is the brunette beauty brought from Vienna several months ago by Paramount. This is her second American picture. She's a comer.

Rarely in his career has Mr. Meighan been called upon for such a variety of performances. They range from comedy to tragedy.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

The Compelling Charm of Pottery

Pottery seems to have been the expressive art of most primitive races. Recently there has been a traveling exhibition of Mexican pottery and glassware that has proved an eye-opener.

The pottery is in the soft old terra cotta, or Indian red, some glazed and some partially glazed. The decorations are mostly in straw color and delicately colored flowers and in geometrical designs with black, green and yellow lines. Chocolate sets of pitcher and tall cups, plates and odd bowls, some of them beautifully decorated and highly glazed, are included. The glassware is as delicate and daintily colored as Bohemian glass. Nothing is for sale, as it is a good will exhibit designed to show us what is made in Mexico.

Chinese and Japanese pottery is always interesting both in coloring and design. This runs to soft gray in color with colorful designs in soft blue. Many of the full round teapots have the wicker handles. Some follow the melon mould. Others the wide, deeply quartered pumpkin. The coloring and decorations are always harmonious with the shape so the pumpkin pot is decorated with pumpkin vines and blossoms, the top of the lid is a blossom and the spout is a folded leaf.

The Japanese Sedge ware, delicate green with white decorations, is much used for salad sets as well as tea sets.

Italian pottery is popular with its yellowish glaze and brilliant decorations. Grapes and fruits in their natural coloring form the decorations, and though colorful they are softly blended and rich looking. Spanish pottery abounds in the live yellow and blues in decoration and the glaze is straw colored. The shapes of the pieces are rather clumsy, the bowls deep and flaring, the plates big and shallow, the candlesticks ornate and heavy in modeling, still with a certain peculiar charm all their own.

STYLE EDICTS

Paris, May 28. — Dark-colored shoes are going to be worn this spring and summer, the light tones of last year having been displayed by richer ones of sable, brown and nigger.

Shoes are made of delicate, supple glaze kid in a shade of dark sapphire-blue, have a handbag to match. Black ones trimmed with pleated leather in red have handbags in the same shade. Alligator-skin makes a new low-cut Oxford tie in rich brown and has a novel bag of envelop order in hexagonal shape to go with them.

Sealskin is soft and yielding and makes some attractive shoes in brown and dark blue. A model in navy has a triple collar of lizard. Black sealskin with a full finish has a collar of polished lizard.

Girls Are Safer If They Tote Gun, Says Crack Pistol Shot

Denver, May 28. — Mrs. Edna E. Christoffen of Portland, Ore., "crack" pistol shot of the Northwest recently showed members of the Denver Police department what a woman could do with a six-gun. She engaged, Capt. Frank Campbell, champion shot of Denver's coppers, in a pistol contest which resulted in a tie, each hitting the bull's eye 92 times out of a possible 100.

"Mrs. Christoffen is a remarkable shot," declared Capt. Campbell. "She has a steadiness and precision that is possessed by few men."

The Portland woman is on a tour of the country to compete with crack shots of various police departments.

While Mrs. Christoffen refused to advocate promiscuous toting of guns, she declared that "a pistol is becoming as necessary as a lipstick to a woman."

"There would be fewer smart Alecks and sidewalk sheiks if they knew that girls toled guns," she explained.

Hudson Bridge To Be World Wonder

New York, May 28.—Forty thousand tons of steel, enough to build four ordinary skyscrapers have been purchased for the new Hudson River bridge, now being constructed at a cost of $75,000,000. It will be the world's greatest bridge and is the result of many years planning on the part of Othmar A. Ammann, who first began to dream of such a structure over the Hudson when he was a boy in Switzerland.

Ancient wonders of the world, such as the Pharos, Egypt's great lighthouse whose fire was said to be visible for a thousand miles, and the Colossus of Rhodes, are out-clasped by the towers which will support the structure, says The American Magazine. These towers, each 650 feet high, will be one third higher than the Pharos and four times as high as the Colossus of Rhodes.

Ten million vehicles are expected to pass across the bridge in 1932.

the first year it is completed. Its capacity will be 30,000,000 vehicles annually and trolley cars will be accommodated on its lower deck.

Afternoon Dress of Blue Gray Lace Over Flesh Satin Foundation.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLEIFFE

She Discusses the Fad for Lace Dresses.

JUST as I decide that I'm tired of lace and hope never to see another lace gown, some lovely dress employing it comes along and I have to retract.

I modeled an awfully smart lace the other day. Its color scheme was simply beautiful and couldn't have been achieved through any other medium. It was blue gray lace over flesh satin, featuring long, tight sleeves and a cape back. Nice? Na-a-therr, as your English cousins would say, Diary, if you had any.

A diagonal insert of lace, for no reason at all, started at the right shoulder and crossed over to end at the left hip where a grosgrain belt gathered it into the skirt. The skirt was a three-tiered arrangement, relieved of monotony by irregular edges.

The grosgrain belt was fastened with a turquoise buckle. Which leads me to the fact that turquoise trimmings are too ultra for words and also gives me the inspiration of how to describe the new metal belts that I've been fishing around for words for, for weeks. Something suggests that I've put too many "fors" in that sentence, but what is one to do when one is only a fashion model and ain't had much book learning?

To get back to the belts, they're made of tiny separate strips of gold or silver held together to look like a grain ribbon. If that's still not plain I'm afraid I can't do anything about it. They're smooth and slick and tone up a dark blue or black serge beautifully.

Chokers of turquoises, fastened with large carved clasps, are tremendously popular. Personally I can't get over a prejudice against turquoise, developed from a memory of bulky mid-Victorian jewelry. To me they seem, somehow—or something. But fashion's brought them back for them as likes.

"CROWN LANDS" FILL PURSE OF GREAT BRITAIN

Estates King George Gave Up Very Profitable
To Government

London, May 28.—If King George has clung to the income from what are known as "Crown Lands" when he came to the throne, instead of surrendering them for a fixed, yearly sum of 470,000 pounds, he would be nearly three times better off today.

Few estates have been more profitably developed than the hereditary lands of the Crown of England. From them the nation derived, during the financial year ending March 31 last, according to the latest official figures, the record sum of $5,500,000 or exactly double the yield of 1915.

The King's lands comprise 276,000 acres, of which 108,000 are agricultural and bring in about five dollars per acre, several thousands comprise seashore or are waste, and the rest are devoted to house and shop property—the latter constitute the gold mine.

Revenues Grow
It is the timely falling-in of leases in London that has so swelled the revenue from the king's lands. The income from the famous London shopping center, Regent street, since rebuilding began seven years ago, has already swelled from $220,000 to $1,565,000.

For instance, the Criterion theater group now pays a rental of $41,000 yearly instead of $8,500; the Plaza theater block has increased from $29,000 to $80,000 and other properties show an equal advance of 500 per cent, while the limit has not yet been reached.

When commissioners were appointed to take charge of the King's lands in the time of George the fifth, the revenue was $55,000 yearly.

Income Surrendered
Since his time it has been the practice of the monarchs on their accession to the throne to surrender the income from these lands in return for a fixed allowance from the state, although any new monarch—say the Prince of Wales—would have a perfect constitutional right to resume the possession of his lands if he preferred this to a fixed allowance. In the ancient times, it paid the king to take what was offered him by the state.

Today, King George, owing to recent re-building developments would be about three and a half million dollars better off every year if he had refused the state grant 18 years ago when he came to the throne.

At his accession, the Crown revenues were a problematical 480,000 pounds, and his allowance was therefore fixed at 470,000 pounds.

LEETONIA

Sunday evening, Rev. Gregory Scholz of St. Dominic parish, Youngstown, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the Catholic of the High school graduating class at St. Patrick's church.

The faculty of the High school was in charge of the program on Friday at the High school assembly. It was of special interest to the students, as the faculty selected the student who had made most progress in four years. It was Miss Margaret Gallagher.

Best athlete, Willis Peet; most dependable student, Edward Greenmeyer; Rhodes scholarship, Myrtle Burbick; best leader, Carl Stambaugh; best musician, Malvern Russell. As each one was named they were called to the front of the room and were presented with a gift as a memento.

Lena Jane Beilhart was the only orator receiving a letter as she was the only orator who had received a grade of 80 per cent on her oration. Those receiving track letters were Kenneth Wagenhouse, Edward Gaubhan and Willis Peet.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church was entertained Thursday evening by Mrs. Coyle Hollenshead in the parish house. The ladies brought their needle work and the evening was spent in sewing. At a late hour, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Friday afternoon the Eighth grade students who will graduate Tuesday evening, held a surprise farewell party to honor Mrs. Tillie McNulty. After school was dismissed for the afternoon, one of the students, Paul Rauch presented Mrs. McNulty, a parting gift, a beautiful rose sapphire ring in a white gold setting. The class colors are rose and silver.

RUMANIA LIKES BOY KING

Boyish King Michael of Rumania, pictured out walking with his mother, the Princess Helene, probably thinks a lot more of his shiny American fire engine than he does of his royal crown, but his loyal subjects nevertheless are up in arms over published statements of the exiled Prince Carol that he only awaits an opportune moment to claim Rumania's throne.

Experts Decree Women Must Wear Longer, Not Long Hair

Columbus, May 28.—Milady will wear her hair longer during the coming season.

This was the edict of hairdressing experts who gathered in Columbus to demonstrate the "last word" in hair dressing styles to Ohio beauty operators.

The boyish bob is now passe, they all agreed. Hair will be worn in length varying from half way between the ear and shoulder to shoulder lengths. While hair will be longer, the modern woman will not wear long hair, they emphasized.

"Long hair will never come back," one beauty specialist said. "Women today demand a quick but effective toilet before going out in public or to a party."

Fluff It Up
"They want to be able to wet a comb and run it through their hair, fluff it up with their fingers and be ready to be on their way. It cannot be done with long hair, and then long hair is uncomfortable and too much trouble."

There is a tendency to let the hair grow longer because the boyish bob and other modes of short hair cuts gave women no individuality, they said. All women in short haircuts and permanent waves look alike save for their dresses. They lack that individuality that they all crave, was their claim.

Longer hair gives women a chance to dress their heads to suit the contours of their face and shape of their heads. This gives them individuality and a distinguishing feature from other women.

The swirl bob is the last word in hairdressing. The hair is moderately short in back and the sides are waved into a swirl leading to the back. The fashionable young lady can wear it behind one ear, if she has unusually pretty external apparatus, or in the usual Tribby style. If one ear is exposed, a dab with rouge will set it off very calorically.

Theater and College
Theaters and colleges dominate the influence that bends fashion in hairdress to its will, most of the specialists admitted. A beautiful ver. Mrs. McNulty showed her appreciation of the gift. The seventh grade teacher, Miss Helene Wilcox, who had been let into the secret, was also present, and assisted the boys and girls in making their arrangements. Refreshments were served.

Friday evening the Kiwanis club members were guests of the Community club of Canfield, at a meeting and dinner. The Leetonia club gave the program.

Mrs. H. C. Brillhart, Mrs. I. F. Mellinger and Mrs. R. C. Harrold motored to Canfield and after dinner at an inn there, were present at the meeting for the program.

Mrs. William Lindsay left Friday for Sebring, where she will visit in the home of her son John Lindsay and family.

Mrs. Clark Burbick and Mrs. John Siler entertained the members of the Priscilla club of St. Paul's Lutheran church in the chapel on Thursday evening. They served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Jesse Peppel of Salem was visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Peppel on Thursday.

Mrs. W. D. Morris was a Salem visitor on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fronk were visiting on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whitacre at Klines Mills on Thursday.

Frenchmen Prefer American Tobacco U. S. Export States

Paris, May 28.—The French prefer American tobacco, according to Benj. D. Hills, tobacco specialist of the U. S. Department of Commerce, now in Paris on an official survey of the foreign tobacco markets. America, he states, now furnishes the greatest supply of the raw product and sales during 1927 of American plug and smoking tobacco show an increase of more than 100 per cent over those of the previous period. Increase in sales of American cigars during the same year show an increase of 71.3 per cent.

France now depends upon the United States for more than 50 per cent of its raw or leaf tobacco from which it makes products by blending with the tobacco leaf of Algeria and other countries.

A few years ago, much criticism was directed against French tobacco and everywhere one complained that the only good smoke in France was a foreign one. Then the French monopoly got busy and developed a variety of cigars and cigarettes that would please the most exacting men or women.

Go into any cafe or tobacco shop today and you will see an amazing array of various colored boxes. Cigarettes of every shade in the rainbow and many the rainbow never saw match Milady's costumes and not only are cigarettes manufactured in mauve, jade, vermillion, beige, scarlet, etc., but the boxes are artistically decorated, making it possible to do away with an expensive case.

Cigars, as well, are now nicely packed in fancy containers designed to harmonize with any color scheme.

Oberammergau, Bavaria—A new theater will be erected for the Passion Play in 1930. This building, which is to replace the present wooden structure, will be constructed entirely of stone. It will have a seating capacity for 4,500 people and comprise an annex for the stage properties and requisite costumes for 700 players. The total cost of this improvement is estimated at $72,000.

Barnum Wasn't Right!

The circus gentleman believed in fooling people and besides he claimed that people liked to be humbugged.

But we say that in the retail business, at least, nobody has ever been able "to get away with" a false claim and price cutting successfully and continually.

Because our business is increasing, there must be truth in what we claim, that we sell good furniture, that our stocks are fresh and pleasingly varied, that our prices throughout the store, are uniformly lower than in other stores.

We welcome you to test these claims.
